Among other curious articles there is a dinaer service of silver, presented to Victoria's uncle, William IV., when he was Duke of Clarence, the donors being merchants of Liverpool, in reward for royal service rendered to them by his advocacy of the slave trade. Forty years later, when he was King, he signed the act of Parliament which abolished slaver in the British dominions on and from August 1, 1834.

"Rev. A. E. Dickinson, D. D., editor of the Religious Herald, preached the commencement sermon and closed by an appeal in behalf of the institute—the money to be used in crecting a new building. Dr. Dickinson hopes to raise was Virginia and $19,000 for it from other sections of the country."

This is the institution to which many persons in this city and in other parts of East Virginia have contributed in response to Rev. J. R. Harrison's efforts in its behalf.
